A Good Seat

Saya is an exchange student in Paris who loves to go to shows. She does not have much money, so she usually buys tickets for seats at the back. One night, Saya went to see a famous horse-riding show. As usual, her seat was at the back. But just before the show started, a staff member came and told her that there was an empty seat in the first row. He said that she could (34) there for free. Saya thanked him and said that she would.

Saya was excited to see the horses right in front of her. But every time they ran by, sand flew into the air. Soon, Saya's hair was covered with sand. At first, she was (35). But then she forgot about the sand because she was enjoying being so close to the horses. She knew that she would remember it forever.

Green Weddings

When couples get married, they want their wedding to be an event that their friends and families will always remember. Because of this, they spend a lot of time preparing for it. In addition to the wedding ceremony, couples often organize a large party afterward at a hotel or restaurant. Recently, many couples in the United States have also been paying attention to the effect that their wedding might have on the environment. (36), more and more couples are choosing to have environmentally friendly “green” weddings.

One way to make a wedding more environmentally friendly is to reduce waste. For example, guests at American weddings traditionally bring a gift, but some couples now ask their guests to give money to a charity instead. This not only helps the charity but also means that the couples do not (37) items that they may not want. Another idea is to use flowers that have been grown locally. This is better for the environment than transporting flowers from far away, which uses a lot of fuel. Also, instead of buying a new wedding dress that will probably not be used again, some brides wear their mother’s wedding dress or buy a secondhand one.

Green weddings may not be right for everybody. For one thing, a green wedding is not necessarily (38) than a regular one. In fact, some environmentally friendly products are very expensive. Moreover, not all brides like the idea of wearing secondhand dresses. However, making just a few green choices when planning a wedding can be good news for the environment.

From: Brian Hill <brian-hill@newbluechoice.com>
To: Judy Hill <jhill@faststepmail.com>
Date: June 15, 2008
Subject: Jason's birthday present

Dear Mom,

How are you? Your grandson is going to be playing the violin in a concert at his high school next Saturday. I wonder if you and Dad would like to come along. Jason is going to do a solo, so he has been practicing really hard. I'm sure he'd love it if his grandparents could be there to hear him play. There's some more information about the concert on the school's website (www.stonebridgehigh.edu).

As you said in your last e-mail, Jason's birthday is coming soon. You asked if he might like a new computer from you and Dad. That's a very kind offer, but I don't think you should buy him such an expensive gift. Besides, the computer he has now works fine. You could buy him a printer, though. His printer broke last week, and it will probably be too expensive to repair it.

You also said that you and Dad are thinking about going to India for a vacation after Dad retires next year. That's really exciting, and I don't think you're too old for that type of trip! You're both healthy, and you enjoy traveling. I'm sure you'd have a great time there. Go for it!

Take care, and let me know about the concert.

Love,
Brian

(39) What is Jason going to do next Saturday?

- 1 Sell tickets for a school concert.
- 2 E-mail his grandparents about his website.
- 3 Visit his grandparents' home with his parents.
- 4 Play a violin solo in a school concert.

(40) Brian says that Jason

- 1 does not need a new computer.
- 2 was not able to repair his computer.
- 3 thinks a printer would be too expensive.
- 4 has recently bought a new printer.

(41) Brian thinks that his parents

- 1 need to think more about their health.
- 2 are too busy to travel abroad.
- 3 would enjoy a trip to India.
- 4 should retire from their jobs.

Cycle City

The streets of Paris are often crowded with cars and other vehicles. This traffic makes it difficult to travel around the city and also causes pollution. In July 2007, the city government introduced a system to help solve these problems. It parked about 10,000 bicycles at 750 special bicycle stations around the city. People can rent the bicycles and then return them to any of the stations. The city hopes that people will stop using their cars so much and start riding bicycles more often.

This is not the first time that this type of system has been tried. In Amsterdam in the 1960s, hundreds of bicycles were put on the streets for anyone to use for free. Unfortunately, many of the bicycles were damaged or stolen, and the system had to be stopped.

The city government of Paris is trying to avoid these problems. The bicycles it is using are strong and do not get damaged easily. Also, people must pay a fee by credit card to use the bicycles. The fee is low for the first hour so that people will return the bicycles quickly. But if the bicycle is not returned within 24 hours, 150 euros will be taken from their credit card.

Although the bicycles are already being widely used, it is too soon to tell what effect they are having on the environment. The people who rent the bicycles may not be people who have stopped driving cars. In addition, it is not always possible for drivers to start riding bicycles. People who travel long distances or need extra space because they do a lot of shopping still use cars. However, the Paris bicycle system has been getting a lot of attention around the world, and other cities are thinking about copying it.

- (42) One reason why the bicycle system in Paris was introduced was to
- 1 increase the sale of bicycles.
 - 2 reduce traffic on the streets.
 - 3 make it easier for people to park their bicycles.
 - 4 teach people that they need exercise.
- (43) What is one reason the bicycle system in Amsterdam did not work?
- 1 The bicycles cost too much to rent.
 - 2 People preferred to use their friends' bicycles.
 - 3 The streets were dangerous to ride bicycles on.
 - 4 Many of the bicycles were never returned.
- (44) How can people use a bicycle in Paris for a low fee?
- 1 By paying the bicycle fee in cash.
 - 2 By parking the bicycle at their home.
 - 3 By repairing the bicycle before returning it.
 - 4 By using the bicycle for a short time.
- (45) Why are some people not using the bicycle system?
- 1 They have too many things to carry.
 - 2 They do not like the design of the bicycles.
 - 3 They cannot understand how the system works.
 - 4 They have to park the bicycles too far from stores.
