Learning to Climb

Last Tuesday, Karen and her co-worker Brian were discussing what they did in their free time. Brian told Karen that he was a member of a rock-climbing club, and that they went climbing almost every weekend. Karen said that she had never been rock climbing, but that she thought it sounded fun. Brian asked her if she would like to (34) it. She said she would, so he invited her to go climbing with his club the following Saturday.

On Saturday, they drove in the club's minibus to an area in the mountains. At first, Karen thought climbing might be (35) for her because she is short. But Brian said that being short actually makes climbing easier. In fact, after a little practice, she was able to climb as fast as Brian. Karen had a great time, and she plans to go climbing with Brian's club again soon.

Junior Cooks

Many Americans are worried about the number of children in the United States who are overweight. A recent study showed that 19 percent of children between the ages of 6 and 11 weigh too much. One reason for this is that some parents give their children convenience foods or take them to eat at fast-food restaurants. Another is that when children buy food and drinks, they often choose unhealthy items. (36), many children prefer sweet drinks like cola to healthier drinks like milk.

Some people think that the answer to this problem is to teach children to cook. They say that when children become interested in cooking, they begin to want to eat (37) food. They ask their parents for healthier meals and buy fewer candies and soft drinks. In 2006, an organization called the Junior League started a new program. In this program, the Junior League invites children to meetings where cooks explain how to prepare healthy snacks and meals.

Cookbooks for children are also becoming more popular. In the past, children's cookbooks were often boring because they only introduced very (38) meals. Recently, though, these cookbooks have become much more interesting. They have many dishes that are more difficult to make, and they also have information about healthy eating. Some teach children how to make food from other parts of the world, such as sushi rolls from Japan and bibimbap from Korea. In this way, they show children that eating healthily is not only good for you, but also fun.

From: Audrey Robinson <audrey74534@newstepworld.com>
 To: Vanessa Robinson <v-robinson@myemailsite.com>
 Date: June 14, 2009
 Subject: Next month

Hi Vanessa,

It was great to see you last Sunday. I know that you've been busy with your new job, so it was nice of you to come and spend time with us. Thanks also for helping me plant the beans and carrots in the garden. Your father and I finished planting the other vegetables this morning. We're still thinking about what kinds of flowers to plant.

Thank you for getting tickets for the three of us to go to the theater next month. Your father loves musicals, so it will be a great way to celebrate his birthday. I hope the tickets weren't too expensive. Let me pay for dinner if we go to a restaurant afterwards.

It would probably be best if we all go to the theater together, so your father and I will take the train to the station closest to your apartment building. We'll take a taxi from the station to your apartment, and then we can go to the theater together in your car. Would it be possible for us to stay in your spare room that night? We'll take the train back home the following morning.

Love,
 Mom

- 1 call a taxi to take them to the theater.
- 2 let them stay at her apartment.
- 3 meet them at the station.
- 4 reserve train tickets for them.

Mary Anning

At the beginning of the 19th century, people's ideas about the natural world were different from those that are common today. Most people in Europe did not believe that animal species died out. When the remains of unknown animals were found, it was thought that the animals must be living somewhere in the world. By the end of the century, however, people understood that the Earth had once been full of dinosaurs and other strange animals. An important reason for this change was the discovery of many dinosaur fossils. One person who played a big part in these discoveries was Mary Anning.

Mary was born in 1799 in Lyme Regis, a small port in the south of England. The seashore at Lyme Regis has many fossils in its rocks. Mary's father, Richard Anning, was a carpenter, but he also collected fossils and sold them to visitors. He taught Mary and her brother, Joseph, how to find fossils and sell them.

Richard died in 1810, and Mary's family became very poor. They continued hunting for fossils to make some money. Then, when Mary was 12 years old, she and her brother made a great discovery. This was the complete fossil of a strange creature with teeth like a crocodile's and a body like a dolphin's. Many scientists went to see the fossil. An expert at the British Museum named the animal an "ichthyosaur," which means "fish lizard."

Mary began to buy books so that she could learn more about dinosaurs. Later, she made many more important discoveries. However, although she knew more about fossils than most professors, she did not become famous until the end of her life. This was because she was poor and because she was a woman. A few months before she died in 1847, though, she was honored by the government, and since then she has been known as one of the first experts in the study of dinosaurs.

- (42) The discovery of dinosaur fossils in the 19th century
- 1 helped people find dinosaurs living in Europe.
 - 2 made it seem unlikely that animals could die out.
 - 3 changed people's ideas about the natural world.
 - 4 caused people to believe in animals that never existed.

- (43) What is one thing Mary Anning learned from her father?
- 1 How to collect fossils from the seashore.
 - 2 How to paint pictures on rocks.
 - 3 The names of the fossils he found.
 - 4 The history of the port of Lyme Regis.

- (44) When Mary Anning was 12 years old, she and her brother
- 1 started to visit the British Museum.
 - 2 met a scientist who gave them a job.
 - 3 saw a strange animal in the sea.
 - 4 found a very important fossil.

- (45) Which of the following statements about Mary Anning is true?
- 1 She became a famous university professor.
 - 2 She was not well known for most of her lifetime.
 - 3 She worked for the government at the end of her life.
 - 4 She was not able to sell the fossils she found.
