Brenda is a high school student in New York. One day, her French teacher announced that there would be a class trip to Quebec City, a place in Canada where French is spoken. Dirty Eating

For most people, earth is something that should not be eaten. For this reason, they wash vegetables carefully before they cook them. However, many people around the world eat earth on purpose. This custom is most common in Africa and South America, but some people in the United States and other Western countries also eat earth.

People who eat earth usually do this for their (36). This is because it contains many things that the body needs, such as calcium and iron. In addition, some types of clay* can be used as medicine for the stomach. For these reasons, in parts of Africa, women who are going to have a baby sometimes eat clay. They say it stops them from feeling sick, and that it helps the babies inside them to grow.

Small children often put earth into their mouths when they are playing outside. Parents usually try to stop them from doing this. Some experts, though, believe that it may have (37) for children. They explain that the bacteria in the earth can help children's bodies fight diseases. They say that children who have contact with earth are less likely to get sick when they grow up.

However, there is no doubt that eating earth can also be (38). In many places, the soil contains harmful chemicals used by farmers. Moreover, harmful bacteria and insect eggs can enter the body along with the earth. According to experts, when people do eat earth, it is important that they make sure to get it from places that are known to be safe.

From: Simon Osmond <simon2378@myemailtime.com>
 To: Clarke Bishop <c-bishop@mercury-juno.com>
 Date: August 20, 2010
 Subject: Re: Drayton College

Dear Clarke,

Thanks for your e-mail, and I'm sorry that I didn't reply right away. I was on a hiking trip with some friends from my high school last week, and I couldn't check my e-mail. I'm excited about sharing a dormitory room with you at Drayton College. It's great that the college sends new students their roommate's e-mail address. This way, we can get to know each other before we meet in the fall.

Thanks for telling me about yourself in your e-mail. We seem to have some things in common. I also like science-fiction novels and horror movies, and I'm bad at keeping my room clean, too! But unlike you, I don't like listening to hip-hop. I prefer jazz. By the way, you didn't say if you do any sports. I play a lot of soccer.

I've been thinking about things we'll need for the room. The college's website says that dormitory rooms have beds, desks, and chairs. It also says that some students bring their own microwave ovens. I'm going to buy a small one, and you're welcome to use it. I'm not planning on taking a TV, but I'll have my laptop computer, and we can watch DVDs on that.

See you in the fall.

Simon

A Famous Desk

One of the most famous pieces of furniture in the United States is a large desk known as the Resolute desk. This wooden desk belongs to the White House, and it has been used by many American presidents. The Resolute desk is over 120 years old and has a very interesting history. In 1845, an English explorer named Sir John Franklin set out from England with two ships to look for a new route to Asia through the Arctic Ocean. Franklin hoped that this would make travel between Europe and Asia faster. However, Franklin and his ships disappeared. In 1848, several ships, including a ship called the Resolute that belonged to the British navy, were sent to the Arctic to search for them.

The captain of the Resolute planned to spend two years searching for the missing ships. However, he failed to find them. Then the Resolute itself became trapped in ice. The captain waited for the ice to melt, but he eventually gave up and decided to return to Britain, leaving his ship behind. He and his crew walked over the ice and sailed home in the other ships that had been sent to the Arctic. Later, the Resolute was discovered by an American fishing boat and taken to a port in Connecticut.

At that time, the relationship between Britain and the United States was not very good, but the American government decided to repair and return the ship. In 1856, it arrived back in Britain. For the next 23 years, the Resolute was used by the British navy. After the navy stopped using the ship, Queen Victoria ordered a desk to be made from its wood. She sent the desk to President Rutherford B. Hayes to thank the Americans. Today, the Resolute desk continues to be an important symbol of the friendship between the United States and Britain.

(42) Why did the Resolute leave Britain in 1848?

- 1 To search for a ship that belonged to the American navy.
- 2 To take a gift to the president of the United States.
- 3 To look for two ships that had become lost.
- 4 To find a faster route between Europe and Asia.

- 1 took his crew back to Britain without his ship.
- 2 decided to leave his ship in a port in Connecticut.
- 3 found an American fishing boat that was trapped in the ice.
- 4 hoped to improve Britain's relationship with the United States.

(44) What happened to the Resolute in 1856?

- 1 It was broken up to make furniture.
- 2 It was found near the United States.
- 3 It was repaired by the British navy.
- 4 It was returned to the British.

(45) What is one thing we learn about the Resolute desk?

- 1 It was made using wood from an American fishing boat.
- 2 It was given to President Rutherford B. Hayes by Queen Victoria.
- 3 The American government bought it from the British navy.
- 4 The British still hope that the Americans will return it.
