Bicycle Power

The Tour de France, a cycling race that takes place over three weeks in July, is one of the world's most popular sporting events. Every year, about 14 million people stand along the sides of roads in France to watch the riders. (36), the race is shown live on television in more than 50 countries. The history of the Tour de France goes back over 100 years.

At the end of the 19th century, cycling races were becoming more common in France. Most of these were held on tracks in special arenas, but a few were on regular roads. People enjoyed reading about these road races in newspapers and magazines. In 1902, Henri Desgrange, the editor of a sports magazine called L'Auto, had the idea of organizing a 2,400-kilometer race through France. He hoped that the race would help his company (37) more magazines. The following year, L'Auto held the first Tour de France. Although only 21 cyclists finished, it was a success for Desgrange because many people were interested in the race. Thanks to the race, the number of people who bought L'Auto doubled.

Later, the race was made even longer, and new stages through the mountains were added. Some of the riders became (38) for their strength and fighting spirit. In 1913, for example, Eugène Christophe broke his bicycle while riding through the Pyrenees Mountains. He carried it 16 kilometers back to the nearest village, borrowed tools to repair it, and then continued the race. As a result, he became well known throughout France. Today, the Tour de France is still known as one of the toughest events in any sport.

 Subject: Vacation house in Florida

Dear Uncle Charles,

It was great to see you and Aunt Maureen at Dad's 50th birthday party last month. Dad was very pleased with the book on Indian cooking that the two of you gave him. He has been trying some of the recipes, and he made a delicious chicken curry yesterday evening.

My college friends and I are very excited about our trip to Florida after Christmas. Thank you for saying we can stay at your vacation house near the Ocklawaha River. I checked on the Internet, and the area looks very beautiful. We are planning to rent a canoe to use on the river. You said that we will be the first people to use the house in three months, and that we will have to clean it up when we get there. Do you have cleaning supplies there, or should we take some with us?

My friend Richard will drive us to Florida in his car. I wonder if you could send me directions to the house by e-mail. I will print them out for Richard. Also, I will need to borrow the house key from you. Can I come to your apartment to pick it up on December 23?

Oral Lee Brown

In the United States, graduating from college is often seen as one important path to success. For many children from poorer areas, however, going to college is an impossible dream. In 1987, a woman named Oral Lee Brown decided to do something to make that dream come true for a small group of children from a poor area of East Oakland, in California.

Brown says she got her idea after a little girl asked her for money in the street. Brown guessed that the girl was not getting enough to eat at home, so she took her to a grocery store to buy food. This experience made Brown start thinking about the problems of poor children in her area. She visited the local elementary school and met many children who needed help. After talking with the principal, Brown made a promise to the 23 students in one first-year class. She said that if they agreed to study hard and graduate from high school, she would pay for them to go to college.

Brown knew that she would have to work hard to keep this promise. She had a good job, but she was not rich. She started saving $10,000 of her own money each year. She also organized events and asked companies to give money. But Brown did not just collect money for the students. She also gave them extra lessons on her days off, bought them Christmas presents, and listened to their problems.

It was hard for the students, too. Many high school students in East Oakland leave school before they graduate, but Brown encouraged the students she met in 1987 to continue. Twelve years later, in 1999, she was very happy because 19 of the original 23 had gone on to college. Since then, Brown has set up an organization called the Oral Lee Brown Foundation to help give other children the opportunity to get a college education.

 - 4 She saw many people buying unhealthy food in a grocery store.

(44) What is one thing Brown did for the students?

- 1 She taught them in her free time.
 - 2 She helped them save their money.
 - 3 She took them on trips at Christmas.
 - 4 She found jobs for them at local companies.

(45) Why was Brown happy in 1999?
