Joining the Orchestra

When Katie was a fourth-grade elementary school student, she was very interested in music. She wanted to learn the violin, but her school did not have an orchestra. The next year, she moved to a different city with her family. Her new school had an orchestra. Katie asked if she could (34) with them. Her music teacher said that it was OK, but she needed to buy a violin.

The next day, Katie and her father went to a music store to buy one. They were surprised to find out how expensive the violins were. Working Together

Most people who own cars only use them for a few hours each day. This means that many cars, which cost a lot of money, are not being used for most of the day. Now, some people have thought of a new idea for a business that uses these cars. They have (36) private car-sharing services. These new companies provide an important service to people who do not own cars.

For a long time, people have been helping their friends and co-workers who do not own cars by driving them to work or school. However, the new car-sharing companies are changing this. Car owners sign up on a car-sharing company's website. They write the times that their car is available and how much it costs per hour. People who want to borrow a car can look for one on the company's website. They try to find a car near them that is not being used. If they find one, they can (37) it. After using the car, they return it to the owner.

At first, some car owners were worried about sharing their cars with other people. However, the car-sharing companies came up with ways to make the services (38). For instance, they check the driving history of borrowers. The companies also ask the owners to write comments about the borrowers. That way, other owners can know whether the borrowers are good drivers or not. Because of these changes, more people are using car-sharing services.

From: Sally Ashley <sallyforever@mymail.com.au>
 To: Laura Edwards <lauralaura@123mail.org>
 Date: October 11, 2015
 Subject: Boxing club

Dear Laura,

It was great to meet you for lunch last week. I remember we used to have lunch every week when we were working together. The Chinese restaurant we ate at was great. Next time you have a free afternoon, I'll take you to one of my favorite Italian restaurants.

As you know, I've been going to a new boxing gym. Since you said you were interested in going, here are some details. There's no need to be nervous. The gym is very nice and I've made lots of friends there. Many of the students are women and there is one female teacher. One thing that surprised me at first was that we only spend a little time doing boxing. We spend most of our time stretching, running, and doing strength training. We wear pads on our heads and bodies when we practice boxing, so it doesn't hurt.

I usually go there on Tuesday evenings. So, if you'd like to try it, how about coming with me then? I'll introduce you to the other members. The first lesson is free to try. You don't need any special equipment or clothes. Just wear normal gym clothes. I think you're going to like it.

Best wishes,
 Sally

School of the Air

Australia is a huge country, and some families in the central part of the country live hundreds of kilometers from other people. In this area, known as the outback, people are far away from services like hospitals and schools. For many years, children from these areas had to live at schools far from their families or do lessons by mail.

However, in the 1940s, everything changed. A woman named Adelaide Miethke had the idea to create a school that broadcasts lessons over a radio network to children in the Australian outback. It was called the School of the Air (SOA). The SOA became very successful at connecting students and teachers, and its schools quickly covered most of Australia. There are now 16 schools giving an education to children who live too far away to attend regular schools.

Nowadays, the students of the SOA do not use radios to take classes. Instead, they use a satellite network to connect with their teachers by computer. Therefore, teachers can now use computers, web cameras, and electronic whiteboards to teach their students. These things help teachers to explain lessons more clearly, and students can have online discussions with their classmates. Although students live far away from any school, they can take part in normal classroom activities.

Darryl Cooper, an SOA teacher, has a 45-minute class with each group of his students every day. Students also have to do worksheets at home. Along with math, reading, and science classes, students can take part in violin groups and cooking classes through their computers. In addition, students take trips every year to the SOA campus, so they can have fun being with their classmates. Thanks to the SOA, these children have the chance to enjoy being part of a community of children while still living at home with their families.

(42) What is one problem children had in the Australian outback?

- 1 There were no schools near their homes.
 - 2 There was no way for them to meet their families.
 - 3 It was difficult for them to find time to study.
 - 4 It was hard for mail to be delivered to them.

(43) The School of the Air

- 1 teaches the history of Australian radio.
 - 2 helps students learn how to fly planes.
 - 3 asks students to buy a new computer every year.
 - 4 broadcasts lessons to students living in the outback.

(44) What is one way today's SOA is different from the SOA in the past?

- 1 Students learn how to make movies in their classes.
 - 2 Technology has made lessons easier to understand.
 - 3 Teachers connect with students through a radio.
 - 4 The SOA tells students to do homework on whiteboards.

(45) What is one way the SOA students are able to be part of a community of children?

- 1 They can play outside with their SOA friends after school.
- 2 They take math and science classes at their local school.
- 3 They enjoy time with their classmates at the SOA campus every year.
- 4 They go to violin groups and cooking classes with their classmates.
