Front Yard Debate

Julie Bass is an American woman who lives in Oak Park, Michigan. She wanted to feed her children healthy vegetables that were grown safely, but such vegetables are usually very expensive to buy. So, in 2011, she decided to grow vegetables in her front yard, where she had some extra space. She thought this would (33) to get healthy food for her children. Bass and her children enjoyed growing vegetables together, and the people living near her thought this was a good idea.

However, not everybody was happy with Bass's new yard. The city of Oak Park sent Bass a letter telling her that she (34) vegetables in her front yard. It said that Oak Park had a law that only plants like grass and flowers could be grown in the front yard. This is because many Americans believe that yards which are covered in green grass are beautiful and make houses in the area more valuable.

When Bass did not get rid of her vegetable garden, the city told her that she might be arrested. This story was reported on the news, and many people (35). They started writing letters to the city because they thought that vegetables were actually more useful than grass. In the end, so many people complained that the city let Bass keep her garden, but people continue to talk about this around the United States.

Subject: Beach party

Hi Laura,

How do you think you did on Professor Jameson's chemistry test last Friday? It was pretty hard, but I think I passed. Even though I study so much, I have trouble understanding what he teaches in class. I heard that Professor Archer's class is easier because she explains things better. Maybe I'll take her Chemistry II class in the fall.

Anyway, I have some good news. Do you remember that I told you that my family has a beach house in Florida? Well, I talked to my parents on the phone today, and I told them that we want to have a beach party this summer. I asked them if we can use the house, and they said yes!

There are some rules, though. First, my dad is going to be at the house with us. I showed him the list of the people that we'd like to invite to the beach. He said that it's OK to invite all of them. Also, we need to clean the house when we're done and take all of the garbage out. We need to decide on the exact dates, too. Let's meet tomorrow to talk about it!

Your friend,

Carla

(36)

Carla says that

- 1 her chemistry professor explains things well.
- 2 her chemistry class is very hard to understand.
- 3 she does not have time to study for chemistry.
- 4 she does not think she passed her chemistry test.

(37)

What did Carla ask her parents to do?

- 1 Have a party for her when she returns home.
- 2 Give her money to travel to Florida.
- 3 Buy her a new phone for her birthday.
- 4 Let her use the beach house that they own.

(38)

Why does Carla want to meet with Laura?

- 1 To write down some rules for a party.
- 2 To decide who will take out the garbage.
- 3 To pick people to invite to the house.
- 4 To plan when they will go to the beach.

One for All

Zambia is a country in southern Africa. More than half of the population is very poor, and companies pay people very little money for their work. One woman named Sylvia Banda had a dream to become a successful businesswoman and build her own brand. So, after finishing high school, Banda went to college to learn how to start a food company. She studied hard and spent her free time coming up with ways to make money, including making food and selling it to friends.

In 1987, when Banda was 24 years old, she decided to start her own restaurant. She borrowed a room and used food, pots, and pans from her own kitchen. The first day, her restaurant did not have any chairs or tables, but she was able to sell all of the food that she had made. After counting the money, she was surprised that she had made more in one day than most people make in one month.

From that small restaurant, Banda built a large company called the Sylva Group. It now has hundreds of people working for it and is worth over a million dollars. In addition to restaurants, the company has now built hotels and a college in Zambia, and it also sells a variety of packaged foods. After reaching her goal of starting her own business and becoming rich, Banda decided to work to improve the lives of other Zambians.

She does this in a number of ways. For one, her restaurants use vegetables and other products made in Zambia, and by doing so, Banda can support local farmers. Her college also teaches farmers ways to make their farms better, which helps them make more money. The college also helps young Zambians gain skills to start their own businesses. Through hard work, Banda has been able to improve both her life and her country.

Why did Sylvia Banda go to college?

- 1 To learn how to teach at a high school.
- 2 To reach her dream of becoming a businesswoman.
- 3 Because her parents wanted her to study hard.
- 4 Because she wanted to spend time with her friends.

(40)

In 1987, Banda

- 1 worked at a small restaurant to learn how to cook.
- 2 rented rooms to her friends to make extra money.
- 3 borrowed money from a bank to start her own company.
- 4 used things from her own kitchen to start her first restaurant.

(41)

The Sylva Group

- 1 is the name of a small restaurant in Zambia.
- 2 has become a valuable company that has many workers.
- 3 builds hotels and restaurants outside of Zambia.
- 4 pays for its workers to go to college.

(42)

What is one way that Banda helps Zambian farmers?

- 1 She helps them get jobs that pay more money than farming.
- 2 She sells their vegetables at her stores for a high price.
- 3 She buys and uses their products in her restaurants.
- 4 She gives them money to make their farms better.
