4	Dear Mike, Thank you for your e-mail. I think those Japanese arts and crafts are popular again because young people want to understand their own culture. It helps them form a sense of identity as Japanese people. I think mascots are a good idea because many of those towns and cities are suffering economically, and mascots help to promote tourism. I've heard that some people visit such places just to see the mascots. As for your final question, I think it's better to grow up in the countryside because the air is a lot cleaner. Also, the countryside is generally much safer, so children can play outside without adult supervision. I hope my answers help. Shion
