| 4 | The number of people who live with their parents after completing their education is increasing. This trend will continue in the future because of the growing emphasis on convenience and safety in modern society. First, living with one's family is convenient because everyone can divide up the housework. Cooking and cleaning require a great deal of effort, and sharing these duties gives people more time for enjoyable things like hobbies. Second, many young people are concerned about safety. Today's high crime rates and media reports of burglaries and other crimes have made them feel that living alone is risky. Because of this, they're more likely to choose the security of living together with their family. Although people have less freedom when living with their parents, safety and convenience are highly valued in today's society. For this reason, the number of people living with their family will continue to increase. |  |  |  |  |
